12 Gorgeous Connecticut Homes That Hit the Market in 2015

As the year comes to a close, we take a look back at Connecticut real estate in 2015. This year saw offerings ranging from a Tudor-Revival perfect for anglophiles, to painstakingly restored midcentury moderns, to the most expensive listing in Fairfield and beyond. Here, we've rounded up some of the most notable homes that hit the market in 2015.

Stamford's first passive homebuilding project includes this modern home that is listed with Walter Block of William Pitt Sotheby's International Realty. Passive homebuilding was a hot topic this year after the White House announced its Passive Homebuilding Initiative. Passive homes are built for 90-percent improved efficiency over traditional construction. They include special heating and cooling systems and are sited to take advantage of natural sunlight for both warmth and light.
